Car Crash Suit Claim Denied

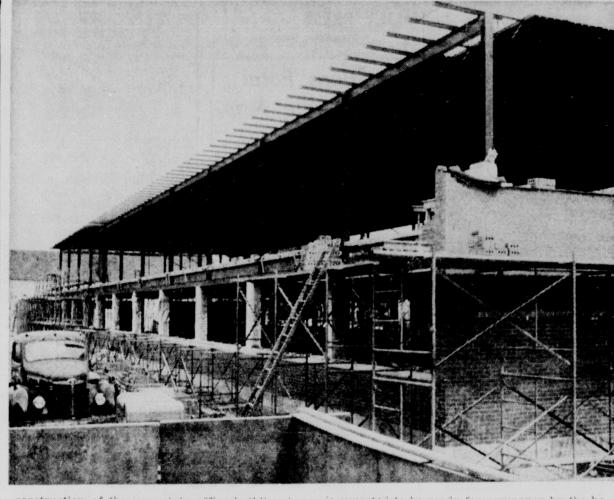

MARQUETTE-A jury in Marquette County Circuit Court after five hours deliberation ruled no cause of action Tuesday night in the suit of Herbert G. King against Walter W. Johnson. Hearing began Monday morning and was completed in midafternoon

King, of Lapeer, Mich., sued Johnson, of Marquette, for $50,000 for injuries allegedly suffered in an automobile accident Nov. 22, 1953 in Baraga County. The two men were drivers of automobiles which collided.

Ten witnesses were called, including Dr. Harold Gross and Roger Murray of Escanaba. Mc-Ginn and Fitzharris, Escanaba, were counsel for Johnson and Jack Smith, Lapeer, for King.

Soil Directors Tour Garden Area

Directors of the Delta County Soil Conservation District toured the Garden Peninsula Wednesday to view soil conservation problems and practices used to combat them and learned that the area's problems are widely varied and that many methods are being used in remedy. The tour is an

Five farms were visited by the tour party, which included Chairman Edwin Bergman, Bark River; Clayton Ford, Cornell; Onni Siimes, Rock; Ted Sundin, Ensign; Robert Watchorn, Fayette; Fred Bernhardt, Delta County 4-H Club leader; and Irwin Ten Haken, soil conservationist, U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

The farms visited were those of John Lester, Orville Martin, Robert Watchorn, Henry Lang and James Collins and Richard

See Soil Methods

The directors observed a contour strip cropping system in use for several years, a grass waterway, several farm windbreaks of white spruce, drainage problems, a silo unloader, a power feed cart.

The Garden Peninsula has some large areas of very good soil, and some good beef herds and good dairy herds. Some of the residents of the peninsula do commercial fishing as well as farming but many devote all their efforts to farming.

The area has considerable idle land and utilization of it was discussed by the Soil District directors. Some of it is idle because it is in old, small farms whose owners have left the land. There have been consolidations of farms, but not enough to bring all the cleared lands back into production by enlargement of active

ber of complaints from city residents regarding the infestation of rose chafers, City Forester Robert Clayton today advised making war on the beetles, using one of the newer chemical sprays as a Malathion is the name of the chemical, which can be purchased at farm supply or seed and feed stores and used according to directions, said the city forester.

Rose chafers, which have occurred in increasing numbers each spring in Escanaba for the past several years, are brownish beetles that feed on the blossoms and foliage of flowers and shrubs. They receive their name because of a particular fondness for roses.

In Escanaba they have been reported eating roses, peonies and even lilac blossoms, Clayton said. When flowers are scarce or absent, the beetles chew up green leaves of almost any plant.

The rose chafer lays its eggs in sandy soil, the grubs feed on the grass roots, and the beetles come out of the soil in the spring and begin feeding above the ground. They will be around for about a month to six weeks.

Clayton said that the city cannot spray for the control of the rose chafer on private property, and suggested that gardeners arm themselves with malathion and a spray gun and bring the pests under control now. This will assure fewer of them in the years ahead.

New Dance Craze In U.S. Just The 110-Year-Old Merengue

DAILY PRESS

Escanaba, June 16, 1955

Dominicans Swing To New Beat; Old Mambo Discarded

SAN CRISTOBAL. Dominican Republic-(NEA)-A new dance which is threatening the popularity of the mambo in the U.S. is old hat to dance-happy Domini-

The dance is the merengue, which is pronounced "may-raingay" and is described by one New York instructor as doing "a fox trot with one leg and a waltz with the other."

Down here the merengue's dipin-the-knee motion has been so popular for more than a century that its rhythms are the country's official national dance music. One legend says it originated in 1844 when a returning war hero with a wounded leg joined in a victory celebration. others copied his limp and it became the pattern of the dance.

to music in two-four time. Merengue means "light-hearted." quira, a serrated gourd scraped with a stick, and the tambora drum are essential to the rhythm. The drum accents the first beat of every bar, and dancers take a step on each beat.

The annual convention parade will be held Saturday afternoon beginning at 2 p. m., with E. J. Doyle of Manistique in charge. Fifty-six entries are reported, including 29 floats and decorated vehicles, chiefly from Manistique.

Tired of Unsightly Walls? Plastra-Tone

When paint isn't the answer Plastra-Tone is. While ordinary paint accentuates cracks and ugly breaks in walls, Plastra-Tone hides and effectively camou flages those unsightly blemishes, because only Plastra-Tone imparts a new textured surface while you re-color your favorite Plastra-Tone is that new, simple-to-apply miracle product which actually plasters as you paint. You roll it on, or brush it. Handle it like paint but just watch it re-surface, repair and re-color all in one operation. Comes in fifteen ready-mixed colors and white. Perfect for every room in the house, it can be applied by anyone. It's so durable, and economical, too.

Expert Tells How To Remove Superfluous Hair

ANN ARBOR-Some women suffer from hypertrichosis. This is the medical term for excessive and annoyingly superfluous hair. Dr. George J. Dickison of the University of Michigan Medical School's Department of Dermatology said the causes range from a hormone-producing tumor to heredity, from an upset glandular system to an agitated emotional system.

He stated, however, "There is women. Hair of the coarse and above on an M-1 rifle heavy type often appears on the chin and upper lip of such per-

The first thing to do is to consult a physician and try to de-termine the cause. And the first thing to decide is whether the local black of the local black superfluous hair might be due to a hormone-producing tumor of the pituitary, adrenal, or ovarian

Local Approach

If no such tumor exists, after delicate examination of certain hormones in the patient's body, then the approach is a local one. Doctors call it "local epilation," or removing hair by careful mechanical means.

According to Dr. Dickison the simplest method for removing hair is by shaving or clipping it

"It is a common misconception," he commented, "that shaving the hair will make it grow faster and coarser. It will not,"

The use of pumice rubbed against the skin is effective against the very slow growing fine hairs. If used too frequently, however, this method causes skin irritation.

Plucking hair, is sometimes effective, but it is tedious and uncomfortable. The depilatories of chemical substances used for eliminating hair should be used cautiously, declared the U-M dermatologist. They can burn the skin, and they should never be applied close to the eyes.

Chemicals vs. Shaving

Actually chemicals are no more effective than shaving; the rate of regrowth of hair is the same in both instances.

"The only technique available which offers reasonable assurance of permanent removal is electrolysis," declared Dr. Dickison. By inserting a fine wire and electrically searing the hair follicle, the cells are destroyed

The method requires a skilled and reputable operator. Even at that, there will be a return, according to the doctor, of one in every 10 hairs treated. These can be destroyed at a subsequent treatment Dr. Dickison concluded by condemning the use of x-ray as a means of destroying hair follicles. "X-ray strong enough to kill hair follicles will by its very nature also damage the skin permanently, and possibly lead to cancer of the skin."

ORDERS 905 CARS

The Chicago and North Western Railway has ordered 905 new freight cars costing approximately $6,500,000. Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing Company will build 750 50-ton, 50-foot 6-inch steel box cars at its Michigan City, plant and 155 70-ton steel covered hopper cars at its Butler, Pa., plant.

(NEA Washington Correspondent) WASHINGTON-(NEA)-The battle to free natural gas field prices from Federal Power Commission regulation has been knocking around Congress for seven years -which should be long enough to settle anything except a dispute with a Russian. Congressional opinion divides sharply along two lines. Senators and representatives from states that are the big gas producers favor removal of the present FPC control authori-

In this connection, one of the more amusing chameleon acts in Congress is to watch Democrats from the five southeastern states where 85 per cent of the gas comes from. They suddenly cease to become champions of the pee-pul's rights whenever anything affecting the welfare of oil and gas producers comes up.

On the other side of the fence are congressmen who come from states that are largely consumers of natural gas distributed through the vast network of interstate pipelines. They naturally favor keeping FPC price controls on.

What makes this issue of general interest is that the question ultimately gets down to hitting people where they live. This is in their pocketbooks when they pay their gas bills.

The natural gas act of 1938 gave FPC control over both transportation and sales of natural gas in interstate commerce.

In 1950, after a two-year struggle, Congress passed Sen. Bob Kerr's bill to exempt the production and gathering of natural gas from this regulation. President Truman vetoed it.

Four years later the Supreme Court by 5-to-3 decided that FPC had jurisdiction over the rates of all wholesalers of natural gas. That should have settled the issue. It

Last February President Eisenhower's Advisory Committee on Energy Supplies and Resources, under Defense Mobilization Director Arthur S. Flemming, filed a new policy report after six months' study. It recommended that interstate transmission of natural gas and its "subsequent" wholesaling for retail distribution should be under FPC regulation. The word "subsequent" was most important, for it would exempt from price regulation all natural gas sold by producers at the wellhead. This is exactly what the gas producers want.

The new policy statement was taken as an indication that if the Kerr bill of 1950 were passed by the present Congress, President Eisenhower might sign it where Truman had vetoed it.

As if to support this view, the Republican chairman of FPC, Jerome J. Kuykendall, asked Congress to take away his commission's present power to regulate gas prices at wellhead.

So now there are seven bills in the House and six in the Senate to amend the Natural Gas Act. A few would redefine and confirm FPC authority to regulate gas prices. Most would free natural gas production from FPC regulation.

The House Interstate Commerce Com mittee has completed hearings and is revising a bill introduced by Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark). There are Senate hearings on a bill by J. William Fulbright (D-Ark).

The lobbies, pressure groups and press agencies built up by both sides in this argument are, of course, tremendous.

Gas producer and pipeline companies are against regulation.

Gas retailers, municipalities and repreentatives of consumer organization like the labor unions are for continued FPC

Mayor Joseph S. Clark, Jr., of Philadelphia and 50 other mayors of major cities with a total population of over 30 million have testified for regulation. Mayor Alex M. Clark of Indianapolis came to Washington to testify as spokesman for a list of 100 mayors who are against FPC regu-

The real answer depends on the effect on prices.

The lobby for the 8000 independent producers-meaning those having no corgues that continued regulation will discourage exploration and new production. They say this will tend to drive prices

Their more valid argument is that coal mining and crude oil production and distribution are not under price regulation of any kind. So why should gas be controlled in a free economy?

Representatives of the municipalities and consumer groups argue that lifting FPC controls would inevitably be followed by price rises to distributors and consum-

Leading against four spades, West laid down the heart king, and East wisely played the queen, calling for a continuation. It is to be feared that some Wests would read this as a suit-preference signal, asking for a shift to dia-monds, but this West made no such horrible error—he led another high heart. This was ruffed in dummy, and declarer then made the good play of the dia-mond king. East correctly held up his ace, but when the diamond queen followed, he took the trick and shifted to the queen of clubs.

South put up the club ace, and it was here that West displayed his imagination. If he ruffed the ace, where would the setting trick come from? Dummy's diamonds were obviously good, and the spade ace would be there for final entry. So West declined to ruff; he discarded a heart.

South sensed exactly what was going on and laid down the club king to offer West more bait, but again West discarded. Now South was helpless. He cashed the spade king and led to dummy's ace, but West ruffed the diamond that was to four spades, the presumption was that East was very short in that suit, and if he had a few hearts—nothing else—West would had to go to the defenders.
